MERCURY AGAIN HITS 3 BELOW ZERO IN MARION

Another frigid week-end was in store for Marionites today as temperatures continued to hover near the zero mark. Last night Weatherman E. H. Raffensperger's thermometer repeated its performance of the night before and sank to three degrees below zero and was expected to be down around there again tonight.

The official government forecast is for mostly cloudy and continued cold tonight and Saturday with snow flurries, slowly rising temperatures Sunday and Monday.

Ice Jams River

The most severe situation in this part of the country was in the Ohio river where huge ice gorges continue to pile up, forming an "unmoving glacier," according to The Associated Press. There was no immediate flood danger, however, because water kept moving and there was no ice. Traffic over the river was halted at Portsmouth where ice prevented ferry service and the bridge was closed for repairs.

1936 Record Passed

Marion's sub-zero temperature last night marked the seventh time the thermometer has gone to 3 below zero this month. This surpasses the January 1936 mark of six times, which was a record in recent years.

Another half-inch of snow piled on the already thick blanket around here yesterday. State roads were all open, however, as maintenance workers continued their constant battle against drifts. Caution was advised, however. One minor accident, blamed on skidding, occurred near here. So far this month approximately 9 inches of snow have fallen on this city.

The cold weather froze up at least three fire hydrants and possibly more, in addition to shattered private pipes.

Drops 21 Degrees

The temperature range for the 24-hour period up to 8 a. m. today was from 18 degrees above to three below. A year ago it was from 25 to 11 above.

Elsewhere in the state low marks of from four to ten degrees below made Cincinnati and other southern sections Ohio's "ice boxes" for the time being.

The weather bureau said the cold will stay over Sunday. Snow flurries were expected in the Lake Erie district, where deep drifts have accumulated from snowfalls ranging from two to ten inches.

Death Toll Grows

Two Dayton women died today of burns. Their clothing caught fire from standing too close to open grates. They were Mrs. Amanda Maffett, 89, and Mrs. Pearl McDaniel, 24.

Leo Waselek, 23, burned to death in fire which consumed a house in which he was sleeping in Warrensville Heights, a Cleveland suburb.

Rural schools remained closed in the area around Washington Court House where it was six below.

The temperature moderated toward the north with Columbus having a low mark of four below, Toledo zero, Akron two above, Youngstown four above and Cleveland six above.

The highway department reported most roads slippery in spots but passible. More light snow was reported around Cleveland, New Philadelphia, St. Clairsville, Steubenville and New Lexington.

Ice Gorges Grow on Ohio River

CINCINNATI, Jan. 26 — The Ohio river was an unmoving glacier for 175 miles today — from above New Richmond, O., to Louisville, Ky.

Attendants at dam 35, 30 miles east of Cincinnati, reported that a stream-filling flow of ice three to seven inches in thickness, stopped at 8 a. m.

Finns Turn Back Furious Attacks by Russian Troops

HONEYMOONING

One of the "toughest" (on the screen) of the Dead End Kids of movie fame, David Gorcey is pictured in New York with his wife enjoying a belated honeymoon. The Gorceys were married twice, in Yuma, Ariz., in November, 1938, and again in May, 1939, to overcome what Gorcey describes as "parental difficulties."

Helsinki Says Soviet Dead Cover Snow and Ice of Battlefield.

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Jan. 26—Furious attacks against Finnish positions northeast of Lake Ladoga were continuing, the army communique said today, but Red army troops everywhere had been thrown back.

A desperate Russian offensive in that region has been under way for almost a week with the Finns reporting no Soviet gains and the ice and snow of the battlefield covered with Russian dead.

An attempt to storm Fort Mantsi on the east coast of Lake Ladoga also failed, the army said, although the Russians made repeated attacks with artillery support.

The communique, reviewing yesterday's activities, said the Finnish lines northeast of Lake Ladoga were under "almost unremitting pressure" but attacks "all were beaten off and our troops retained their positions everywhere."

Other Forces Stopped

Military authorities reported Red army division had been stopped at Aittojoki and Kollaanjoki, on the front northeast of Lake Ladoga, in drives to relieve large Russian forces virtually isolated near Kitela.

In Lapland, another large Russian force seemed to be in difficulty near Markajarvi where, a Finnish communique said, an enemy attack "was repulsed."

This indicated an unsuccessful counterattack on the Salla front about 50 miles from the Russian frontier. Retreating to Markajarvi some days ago after abandoning a drive intended to cut through Finland's narrow waist, a Red army force of 40,000 men had been forced to wage rearguard warfare.

Unofficial accounts said about 6,000 Russians were in peril of starvation in the Salla district and that Russian warplanes were attempting to get food to them by parachute.

Thousands Charge Lines

In the southeast, where wave after wave of Russians were said to have charged across the frozen lakes on the flank of the Mannerheim line in a costly effort to reach the marooned force at Kitela, Finns pictured the Red army on a tremendous treadmill.

Since the war started, they said, the Russians have sent men and machines against the Finns in repeated assaults but have remained virtually at their starting place.

Seven American fliers arrived yesterday to join other foreign volunteers with Finlands air force. Headed by Vincent Schmidt, Mineola, N. Y., World war veteran who served with the Chinese and Spanish republican air forces, they included Marcus J. Clark, Hollywood, Calif.; Fredrik Lundotterson, Philadelphia; Charles L. Sterling, New York City; Harry Schell, who had been living in Monte Carlo; George Folds, Lake Forest, Ill.; and Emil L. Toussant, Grand Forks, N. D.

Events Arranged Here in Campaign for Aid of Finns

Chairman G. E. Planck Schedules Series of Benefits.

An active program of Marion city and county participation in the national Finnish relief drive was announced today by George E. Planck, Palace theater manager and county chairman of the Finnish Relief Fund.

Starting next week containers will be placed in uptown restaurants, theaters and hotels to collect contributions.

Two theater parties and a public bridge party have been planned for next month and it is the hope of the chairman that a number of bridge clubs will arrange for benefit parties throughout the city to swell the relief fund.

None of the relief parties will cost a penny, Mr. Planck emphasized today. Every cent contributed will go directly to ex-President Herbert Hoover, head of the Finnish relief drive, at headquarters in New York City. There will be no state organization or subdivision through which the money will be handled.

No one connected with the Finnish Relief drive will be compensated in any way except in the thanks of Mr. Hoover and of the people who appreciate the opportunity to contribute to the country now at war with Russia.

First of the theater parties will be a midnight show on Saturday, Feb. 10. The second will be a matinee on Thursday, Feb. 15. Both will be at the Palace theater and the matinee will feature a spring fashion show.

The public bridge party will be given on Friday night, Feb. 16 in the Hotel Harding ballroom and on the mezzanine. A second spring style show will be an added attraction.

All administrative costs in connection with the three parties will be contributed, including the charge for the theater and ballroom, the employes' services and the price of printing tickets.

Tickets for the three events will be placed on sale some time next week.

Mr. Planck today was completing the organization of committees to take charge of the parties and the sale of tickets.

Announcement of Mr. Planck's appointment was made here this week by Prof. Eugene Van Cleff of Ohio State university, state chairman of the campaign.

OHIOAN HITS BUSINESS FOES

Declares Industry Afraid of Reprisals If They Oppose Trade Pacts.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Representative Jenkins (R-Ohio) shouted to the house ways and means committee today that "many manufacturers" had not testified against the reciprocal trade program "because they were afraid of reprisals."

"Every witness is confronted with this situation," Jenkins said heatedly. "I never before have seen such vicious attacks on witnesses.

"This is something new, these runners coming in and out to confront you and confound you with statements you have made in the past and to disquiet you if they can."

Jenkins released his blast after Representative Robertson (D-Va.) had questioned a witness, J. M. Wells, about statements Wells made some years ago before the tariff commission.

Roberston had stepped from the hearing—on whether to continue the trade program—and there was no immediate reply from the Democratic side of the committee.

Jenkins said it was "refreshing" to have Wells give the views of chinaware manufacturers on the pacts.

"We have failed," Jenkins said, "to get a great many manufacturers down here because they are afraid of reprisals."

Jenkins' reference to "runners" apparently was to clerks behind the committee rail aiding committee members engaged in questioning witnesses. Such clerks have been aiding both Republicans and Democrats.

Representing the United States Potters association, Wells urged discontinuance of the trade treaties on the ground that they were unconstitutional and hurtful.

Mrs. Judd Collier of Mumford Texas, urged their continuance as "a mild antidote against tariffs."

Mrs. Collier, president of the fourth district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs, said she wanted to tell the committee that "our high tariffs have encouraged cotton growing all over the world."

Wells complained that department of commerce figures regarding foreign trade did not reflect differences in wage standards.

"As it is now, for instance," he said, "we have $1,000 worth of automobiles exported to Japan balanced against $1,000 worth of china imported from Japan."

PRESIDENT AVOIDS 3D TERM QUESTION

Won't Even Comment on Lewis Statement.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—President Roosevelt once more turned aside third-term inquiries today, including a request for comment on John L. Lewis' prediction of "ignominious defeat" if he were a 1940 candidate.

When the statement of the C.I.O. leader was brought up at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt promptly asked reporters to give one good reason why he should answer an inquiry of that kind.

A laugh rolled through the conference room when one reporter suggested the answer would make good copy.

Well, there's your answer, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Newsmen took another third-term tack by asking the President whether he had told Senator Donahey, Democrat of Ohio, there would be no need for him to run as a favorite son for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mr. Roosevelt replied this time by saying he had told Donahey last spring he hoped the Ohioan would run again for the senate and that the matter began and ended there.

In leaving both questions without any direct reply Mr. Roosevelt once again showed preference for keeping his own views on the Ohio political situation—which involves the third term issue—very closely to himself.

Expiration of U. S.-Jap Treaty Today Opens Way for War Goods Embargo

(More About Treaty on Editorial Page)

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Expiration of the Japanese-American commercial treaty at midnight tonight opens the way for congress to embargo shipments of war materials or take other action to hinder Tokyo's undeclared war on China.

Whether any steps actually will be taken apparently depends on Japan. The treaty's termination — without fanfare — places commercial relations between the two countries on a day-to-day basis, although customs duties remain unchanged.

American abrogation of the 29-year-old pact is believed in many capital quarters to have been prompted by congressional agitation for an embargo on materials which Japan needs for her military campaigns.

Bills pending in the senate would stop exports to Tokyo on the ground that Japan has violated the nine-power treaty respecting the territorial integrity of China. There is some talk in the senate foreign relations committee, however, of a compromise on these proposals.

Senator George (D-Ga.) suggested a milder restriction to forbid the shipment of materials essential to the defense of the United States. Other members said such a proposal probably would have to be applied to all countries if it were imposed.

Wheeler Wants President To Explain 3rd Term Plans

Levies Presented As Best Relief Financing Plan

This is the final article in the series published by The Star this week to acquaint the public with the major points concerning the two tax levies for relief and WPA which will be voted on in a special city election Tuesday. The information for the articles was furnished by city officials, who took this means of presenting their arguments on behalf of the levies.

The real question before the citizens of Marion when they go to the polls Tuesday will be whether relief is to be sensibly financed or whether it will continue on a touch and go basis.

This is the belief of city officials who are proposing the two special tax levies which will be before the voters. One levy is for 1.3 mills, raising approximately $43,000 annually for relief, and the other is for .9 of a mill, raising about $30,000 for sponsoring WPA projects.

In the past both relief and WPA as far as the city and also the state are concerned, have been financed to a large extent on a stop-gap system, with temporary plans established to carry only for a comparatively short period.

The two proposed levies would be effective for two years and would provide funds for at least that period and possibly longer if general economic conditions improve or the state increases its share of the relief burden.

Points Summarized

A review of the various points brought out by city officials in favor of the two proposals follows:

1. Why tax levies are chosen—The tax levy plan is one of three which would raise sufficient funds to carry the burden. The other two present difficulties which render them impracticable. They are issuing of bonds, probably in sufficient amount to finance relief and WPA costs for five years, and using the city's normal operating revenue. If bonds were issued, a tax would have to be levied over a long period of years to retire them. A large fund would be created and because of human nature probably would be used up ahead of schedule, relief clients demanding more aid and officials giving it. If the city's operating revenue were used, it would mean that more than one-third of the money normally used for carrying on public services (police and fire protection, health service and the like) would be taken away.

There are other sources available, but not one would come close to meeting the demand.

2. What is the relief need?—For the last six months there were an average of 475 cases on relief and some 300 on city WPA projects. Officials find no cause for believing this load will go down in the near future. For the last year or so the number of cases has been reasonably stable.

3. How would the money be used? — The $43,000 annually from the relief levy would be used for matching state grants of funds. The state grants are expected to average about 38 cents on every dollar spent for relief. The relief clients receive 90.7 cents of every relief dollar. Only 9.3 is spent on administration in Marion, low when compared with a state limit of 12 cents. The relief clients receive food, fuel and clothing and in extreme cases medical care and shelter. The WPA money would be used to sponsor various types of projects.

4. What WPA projects are likely?—If the levies are approved the city undoubtedly will go ahead with its plans for a $138,000 sewer improvement project, which would cost the city about $36,000 and the WPA about $100,000. In addition the sewing center project and household aid project for women would be continued. Possibly others would be started. Some street improvement work would be continued.

5. What would the tax levies mean to the taxpayers?—The two levies total 2.2 mills annually for

FIRE STRIKES MARION STORE

Flames and Smoke Cause Damage at Sears, Roebuck & Co. Building.

A fire of undetermined origin last night resulted in damage unofficially estimated at approximately $6,000 to the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store at 231 West Center street.

W. J. Toole, manager of the store, said damage from the fire itself would not be great—probably not more than $1,500—but that there would be an additional loss resulting from smoke. An estimate of the smoke damage was not available today since company representatives and insurance company adjustors from Chicago had not yet arrived to inspect the stock.

The store was open for business today.

Three-Hour Fight

Despite the fact that the fire burned only a small section of the store, 20 firemen worked more than three hours, from 9 p. m. until after midnight, extinguishing flames that broke out in remote sections of partitions and flooring.

Fire Chief McFarland said the fire apparently started in a coal bin in the southwest corner of the basement and apparently had been smouldering at least two hours before breaking out. The flames spread from the coal bin into flooring of two rest rooms on the first floor of the store and firemen succeeded in confining the flames to these two small rooms.

Pipes Melted

Plumbing fixtures in the rest rooms were ruined by the flames and the heat was so intense that water pipes in partitions between the rest rooms and the basement were melted. Chief McFarland said that when firemen from the Central and West Side stations first arrived they had difficulty reaching the flames because of heat and smoke. All firemen from the Central and West Side stations first answered the call and later seven who were off duty were called away from a card party at the Moose home to assist in fighting the flames.

The fire was not discovered until about 9 o'clock but two hours before—about 7 p. m.—residents

Necessary Blockade

Police and firemen chuckled today over a request made by a motorist during last night's fire at the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store. The man asked one of the policemen on traffic duty in the fire zone if he could have the fire truck moved so he could get his car out of a parking place.

The answer was a polite but firm "No."

Kirby Page To Be Speaker on Forum Program Sunday

Officers of the Marion Community Forum today were completing arrangements for the third Forum program of the season which will be held at Edison Junior High school auditorium next Sunday afternoon.

Kirby Page, widely known author and social evangelist, will be the principal speaker. Opening the program at 2:30 o'clock, Mr. Page will speak on "Religious Contributions in an Age of Social Crisis," and then will lead a one-hour discussion in which members of the audience will be invited to participate.

Mr. Page, whose work is similar to that of Sherwood Eddy, is the author of 19 volumes and numerous pamphlets on international, economic, social and religious subjects and in recent years had divided his time between writing and lecturing. At one time he was a member of the faculty of the Yale University Divinity school and later was a lecturer at the Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

In addition to the address and "town hall" discussion, the Sunday afternoon program also will include the presentation of a constitution which has recently been drafted for the Forum.

D. T. Mills, Forum president, will preside.

GASOLINE PRICE CUT ANNOUNCED

Gasoline prices in Marion and most the state will be reduced one-half cent a gallon on all grades effective tomorrow, officials of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio announced today. The change apparently will affect a majority of the local retailers since officials of most companies reported they "likely will follow suit," in the reduction. Several, however, reported they had received no notice of the change up to noon today. With the cut gasoline will sell at 18½ cents for regular grades and 18½ cents for ethyl grades. The reduction will affect the city of Washington [illegible] prices [illegible] them.

SENATOR WHEELER

Senator Says Roosevelt Can Have Nomination If He Seeks It.

TO ADDRESS MINERS

Lewis' Plans for Indorsement Still Kept Closely Guarded Secret.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 26—Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, asserting that Franklin D. Roosevelt could get a third term nomination if he wants it, today appealed to the President to make his political intentions known immediately.

"In my judgment, if President Roosevelt wants the nomination he will get it," Wheeler told a press conference. He came here to address the convention of United Mine Workers of America, whose President John L. Lewis declared two days ago that renomination of Mr. Roosevelt would result in his "ignominious defeat."

"If he wants the nomination he should say so," Wheeler added. "If he does not want it he should say so."

"I think it would be better for him and the Democratic party to say so now. If he wants the nomination. The longer the situation runs the more chaotic conditions within the party become. It can only lead to disaster if the confusion continues up to the time of the (Democratic national) convention."

Avoids Question

Senator Wheeler, whom many political observers believe will receive Lewis' indorsement for president, only smiled when asked if he would be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I will be a candidate for re-election," he said.

"Any President of the United States can renominate himself if he wants to. The federal government has too large an organization and too much patronage for anyone to overcome it. It has always been true that a President could renominate himself and the government today is larger than at any time in history."

Senator Wheeler said he would support President Roosevelt despite personal opposition to breaking a third term tradition.

However, it is unlikely Mr. Roosevelt will seek the nomination, Wheeler added.

Makes G. O. P. Guess

U. S. Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) was Wheeler's "guess" as the Republican's likely presidential nominee. He also said that he knew of no Democrat or Republican presidential candidate, including U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) who would not be glad to have Lewis' support.

"I would be happy to have the support of Mr. Lewis and any one else interested in preserving democracy in this country," Wheeler continued.

Exception to Lewis' statement Wednesday that the Democratic party had failed to keep faith with labor was taken by Senator Wheeler, who observed that Democrats had done more for the working man than any other party. This, he said, was despite the fact "they have not solved the unemployment situation and a lot of other economic questions yet."

He remarked that some of President Roosevelt's advisers were recommending delaying any third term announcement until the present session of congress is adjourned.

"It would not change the picture in congress unless it might

AKRON GROUP ASKS 3D TERM

Demand Faces Young Democrats at Convention in Columbus.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 26—Ohio's young Democrats opened their two-day annual convention today faced with propositions calling on President Roosevelt to run for reelection and Sen. Vic Donahey to seek a fourth term as governor of the state.

Both demands came from the Akron Young Men's Democratic club.

Some delegates doubted whether the convention would permit discussion of either proposal, although they admitted "you never can tell what these fighting young Democrats will do."

It generally was anticipated that friends of former Gov. Davey would oppose both suggestions because Davey has had differences with the New Deal and has not yet eliminated himself from the gubernatorial race.

Davey attended a Wayne county Democratic rally last night, asserting:

"I am not here as a candidate—yet."

Donahey said following a conference with President Roosevelt that he had not even revealed his political plans to the Chief Executive but that he would announce them publicly next month.

Election of officers and routine matters was the only other business expected to come before the Young Democrat convention.

James Bolan of Toledo and Ralph Groves of Steubenville were the most discussed candidates to succeed Oscar Loyer of Findlay as league president. Bolan heads the Lucas county club, while Groves is president of the Jefferson county group.

Preliminary meetings will be held this afternoon with the convention proper starting tonight. Lawrence Swartz of Cincinnati will deliver the keynote speech at the final meeting Saturday afternoon.

Charles West of Granville, former contact man for President Roosevelt, suggested at a caucus of the 17th district Democrats in Mt. Vernon last night that the Ohio delegation to the Democratic national convention name Senator Donahey as its first choice candidate for president and Henry Brunner, Mansfield political leader, as second choice.

Frank Cave of Mansfield, former state representative, announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for 17th district congressman in a special primary Feb. 6. The caucus made no indorsements.

Wheeler Hits "Economic Absurdities" in Address Before Mine Convention

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 26—Economic "absurdities" must be solved to relieve unemployment and insure prosperity, Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, declared today after calling on President Roosevelt to reveal his third term intentions.

"The nearly 10 million who lack real jobs—and agriculture with its millions of low income farmers—must be given an opportunity to consume not only the necessities but also the luxuries of life," Wheeler said.

Wheeler, center of speculation over whether he would receive John L. Lewis' indorsement for President, prepared his remarks on national issues for the United Mine Workers of America convention.

Wheeler told delegates representing 600,000 miners that "unemployment—involved and comparatively untouched" was America's No. 1 problem.

"All right thinking people have long since rejected the idea that the policies governing our industrial life—upon which jobs for millions depend—can be determined by men who are responsible to no one for their decisions," he said.

"We in this country have pursued a policy of restricting production and maintaining prices to protect profits. We have been unable to make the tremendous scientific discoveries of our age serve the welfare of the people. We have managed our economy so that it either produces too much or too little.

"It is time for us to say that these economic absurdities must be solved in the interest of all the people. It is time to say that upon the wisdom and the experience of the American people we can—if we will—manage our economic life so that in the place of production; * * * in the place of restriction, we have expansion of recurrent shutdowns and unemployment we have a steady level of production and jobs. * * *

BRIGHT SPOTS SHOW IN LIST

Market as a Whole, However, Makes Little Progress to Higher Levels.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Jan. 26—The stock market had its bright spots today but the list, as a whole, continued under speculative clouds.

The general run of leaders moved listlessly and narrowly from the start and, near the fourth hour, inconsequential gains and losses were about evenly divided.

European securities markets were irregularly lower and bonds and commodities mixed.

Among scattered strong shares were those of Bethlehem 5 and 7 per cent preferreds and Cluett Peabody. These made new tops for 1939-40 with advances of 1 to 2 points.

Supported also were Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem common, Loft, Westinghouse, Chrysler, General Motors, Kennecott and Allied Chemical.

Lacking rising steam were Goodyear, American Telephone, Great Northern, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, American Can and Johns-Manville.

Steels had the benefit of the better than expected earnings figures of Bethlehem which reported the final 1939 quarter the best in 10 years with $3.74 a share for the common against 58 cents in the same 1938 period. At the same time, falling steel orders and production currently caused some purchasing hesitancy in the metal group.

Rubber company stocks were not particularly responsive to statistics revealing replacement sales of auto tires during 1939 exceeded those in 1938 by 32.1 per cent with the largest aggregate since 1929.

RALLYING SIGNS SHOWN BY WHEAT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—The wheat market showed signs of rallying today after prices had dipped to within ¼ cent of the lowest level in more than a month but the recovery was feeble.

Prices fluctuated nervously throughout the session, pit brokers said this undoubtedly reflected general uncertainty in the trade regarding such important market factors as condition of the new winter wheat crop and the outcome of the 1939 loan program, under which more than 160,000,000 bushels of wheat have been kept off the market for almost a year.

Wheat closed ¼ lower to ¼ higher, compared with yesterday's finish, May 98⅝-¾, July 98⅛-¼; corn unchanged, May 57⅛-¼, July 57⅛; oats ⅛ off to ⅛ up.

Blood Runs Cold

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Adrianne Wells faints when the Sergeant asks her where she was the night of the murder. Her room-mate, Mary Ann Rogers admits that Adrianne was out part of the evening, and also reports seeing Kincaid in the hall.

Address Unknown?

"KINCAID'S mail was redirected in your handwriting," the Sergeant told Miss Wells.

"Sergeant," I said to myself, "you're a liar. You haven't had time to study handwriting this morning."

"Mr. Kincaid didn't want his address known here," Adrianne burst out. "Anyway, what has that to do with the murder?"

"I'm the one to decide that," the Sergeant said roughly. 'Come on, now. Out with it."

"I'd rather give it to you when no one else is around. After all it was supposed to be a confidence."

"O.K. Tell me in the hall."

The Sergeant led her out of the room, and in a moment she returned alone. Without saying a word she went to the dressing table and, after she powdered her nose, she threw her compact on the table with a clatter and picked up her lipstick. I could see her in the mirror as she made up her mouth in two or three careless strokes. She was still pale and her dark eyes were guarded, but she had regained her composure. Mrs. Evans was watching her curiously.

When the Sergeant came in a few minutes later he was smiling. "Well, that's better. We can get somewhere if everyone will help. Miss Rogers thought she saw Mr. Kincaid last night. Did you see him, too, Miss Wells?"

She sat down again, shaking her head. "No."

The Sergeant took a chair close to both of the girls, and bending forward intently asked whether either of them knew Richard MacDonald, who lived upstairs.

"Just by sight," Adrianne Wells said.

And then without looking at the Sergeant or answering, Mary Ann picked up her fur jacket and hung it in the closet. She did it casually. Much too casually.

"Well, Miss Rogers?"

It seemed a long time before she turned around and faced us again. Then she picked up her hat and turned back to the closet with it.

"I knew him by sight," she murmured as she laid it carefully on the shelf. "Why?"

The Sergeant's eyes were on her, speculatively. "I just wondered, that's all."

And when she came back and sat down again Mrs. Evans stared at her. "Many's the time I've seen you with him," she said.

Mary Ann looked up at her, wide-eyed. "Oh, I know him," she said with a faint smile, "but not very well."

"Then you wouldn't know where he was last night?" asked the Sergeant.

Her voice was level when she answered, "No, I have no idea where he was."

Adrianne Wells lifted one eyebrow. "Have you lost him, Sergeant?"

The Sergeant disappointed me. He turned back to his notebook without a word.

A. J. W.

Suddenly the cigarette lighter occurred to me. The initials were "A. J. W." That might be Adrianne Wells.

I'd forgotten to give the lighter to the Sergeant or even to mention it to him, so I slipped out of the room while he started to question the girls again, and ran to my room. I reached hurriedly for the lighter on the top of the chest.

It wasn't there. My own was lying in the same place I'd put it.

I upset everything in the room looking for it. But it was gone. I tried to think when I had been out of the apartment. It must have been while I was out for breakfast that someone had come in and taken it. That made me uneasy. I didn't like the idea of a person or persons unknown prowling around; the man last night, and now someone again today. There'd been one murder and that was enough.

When I went back to the front apartment I was in a lather. The Sergeant was still sitting with the girls and Mrs. Evans, but he seemed to have made little progress. Adrianne Wells was still looking out of the window. He stopped talking and turned to me when I sat down by Mary Ann, so I told him about the lighter. I was so upset that my voice was shaky, and the Sergeant didn't help any, eyeing me as though I were having hallucinations.

"Can you describe the lighter?" he finally asked tolerantly.

I hesitated. Perhaps it wasn't right to involve the girl — she seemed to be in pretty deep as it was—but after all, there had been a murder.

"It was silver, and the initials on it were A.J.W."

If I expected Adrianne Wells to scream or faint again I was disappointed. In the most apathetic fashion imaginable she looked at the Sergeant and said, "That was my lighter."

I gripped the arms of the chair, expecting the Sergeant to burst into flame. But he didn't. He sat there as clam as a clam and waited for her to go on.

"I loaned it to Mr. Kincaid while he was living here," she said. "He must have left it behind when he moved." She turned to me. "You see, he had your apartment."

That sounded too pat to me. "That lighter wasn't in my room last night," I said.

The Sergeant looked up. "You're sure?"

"Positive. I'd have seen it. This morning I found it on the floor right in front of my door. It wasn't there last night."

"We'll see," he said. "I've sent for Mr. Kincaid."

Then he asked Miss Wells about her work, and after much prodding he unearthed a scanty bit of information. She'd been in the chorus of a musical comedy. After five minutes of thundering we learned that the show's run had been short and she was trying now to get in a new revue. After ten minutes more the Sergeant was forced to realize that he'd met his Waterloo. The girl was not going to talk. She looked at us unconcernedly enough, but her mouth was drawn in a tight, stubborn line.

Mrs. Evans departed first, with a sidelong glance at the Sergeant. "You'll never get anywhere this way," she said as she waddled up to the third floor.

Without answering, the Sergeant went downstairs and I went back to my room.

List of Questions

The less said about that afternoon the better. I hung some old flowered chintz curtains and they made the room look a bit less dismal, though they were too short for the long windows. And I tried to finish unpacking, but the house was a shambles. There were men prowling around—detectives, I guess—and Mr. Norton, who made frequent trips to the second floor, found an excuse for knocking every time he passed.

Finally I said, "There is no hope for you. My heart is in Bermuda."

He grinned at that. "Don't flatter yourself, Blondie. It's the girl in the front apartment I'm gaga about. What's her name?"

"Which one?"

"Baby," he said, "I never bother with brunettes. I mean the one with the hair like mine."

"And now you're flattering yourself," I said.

He patted his carrot red hair sadly. "I know it, but I thought with hers and mine the children would have a wonderful hair."

I threw a magazine at him and he ducked out of the door and then leaned back. "Be a sport, Blondie. What's her name?"

"Mary Ann Rogers."

"Now, isn't that cute?" he said. "There's nothing I like better than Mary Ann."

"I'm glad you're happy," I said, and closed the door firmly in his face.

While I was puttering around it suddenly came to me that I might do a little detective work on my own. When Dirck Kolff came it might help. He'd want to know all the details. I couldn't find a notebook so I wrote on a piece of paper tacked to my drawing board. It was difficult to get the things straight in my mind. But finally I jotted down some questions:

Was Joan Kent dead when I knocked on the door last night?

If she was dead then, who opened the window?

Who was hiding on the stairway while I was in the hall?

Was it Mr. Kincaid who rushed into my room?

Why did he leave the house under mysterious circumstances?

Mr. Kimball would take nothing less than a year's lease.

Why was Mrs. Evans so sure it was Mr. Kimball who murdered Joan Kent?

Who was the man who telephoned and wouldn't give his name?

Where was Richard MacDonald last night?

Why did Miss Wells and Miss Rogers both act so strange?

I was eager to meet the rest of the people in the house. Sergeant Long had said he was rounding them up. There was the artist, whatever his name was, on the third floor, and Richard MacDonald who'd been gone all night; the mysterious Mr. Kincaid who paid me a visit after midnight. Patrick, the janitor, and Ishi, who had been away from the shop.

About three o'clock I decided to see if the Knife and Fork had anything besides wheat cakes. So I bundled into my fur coat and a beret and sallied out. In the hall I could hear voices from the front apartment. One of the girls was crying, and as I went down the stairway I heard Mary Ann say in a shrill, excited voice:

"If you'd only tell me where you were last night I'd know what to say when he asks me still more questions!"

WORTH CONSIDERING

Editor of The Star: There is much to be done in improving the service and operation of the Marion city school board. In deference to those men who so willingly, without any compensation, work for the interest of the citizens and taxpayers as well as the children of school age of our city, there remains a solution which might be of great interest. It appears, reading between the lines, one of the chief factors in becoming a member of such a useful organization is to become clerk which pays a salary of one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month. Wouldn't it be better to employ one of the ladies in the superintendent's office, who are now doing a great part of the work, at a small increase in salary, thereby eliminating the salary to any member on the board, placing them on an equality to serve the schools without any partiality whatsoever?

Surely we do not need six men on the board when the law provides for only five. This arrangement has a great advantage in that no man will want to be a member of the school board for a salary but will wish to perform a service which will be civic in its entirety.

Why not try the above solution which would be a saving financially to the citizens and taxpayers of Marion?

Believe Vitamin May Bring Cure in Mental Cases

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—Discovery that a vitamin may be the clue to the cause and cure of one fatal type of brain disease was announced today in the journal of the American Medical Association.

A group of New York physicians reported that injections of nicotine acid, a factor in the vitamin B complex, caused a "marked drop" in deaths from the ailment.

The disease sometimes occurring in alcoholic patients or those suffering from pellagra has been almost always fatal heretofore.

The doctors, Norman Jolliffe, Karl M. Bowman, Louis A. Rosenblum and Harry D. Fein, reported that out of 150 cases the death rate in a group treated with nicotinic acid was 13.6 per cent, compared with 51.5, 89.4 and 100 per cent in other groups given other treatments.

"It is noteworthy that before the use of nicotinic acid we had never witnessed recovery in four consecutive cases but had witnessed death in more than 15 consecutive cases," they said.

A snake extract, the venom of the deadly cobra is being used to relieve pain from neuralgia, arthritis and related ailments. Four New York doctors, Otto Steinbrocker, George C. McEachern, Emanuel P. La Motta and Freeman Brooks, announced that injections of cobra venom gave slight or moderate benefit to 59.01 per cent of 61 patients treated.

The possibility that a drug used by Indians to poison arrow heads may prevent broken bones in some mental patients was reported by Dr. A. E. Bennett of Omaha.

He said injections of the drug, curare, desensitizes nerves and lessens the severity of muscular contractions which sometimes cause fractures when patients with mental disorders undergo a convulsive shock treatment such as metrazol injections.

CIVIC SERVICE TALK HEARD BY KIWANIANS

Citizens' Responsibility Cited by F. B. Pauly.

The ability and willingness of the average citizen to assume civic responsibility will determine the success or failure of a new order which is rapidly being developed by industry and business, Frank B. Pauly of Columbus, publicity director of the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants, told members of the Marion Kiwanis club yesterday.

Speaking in a luncheon meeting of the club at Hotel Marion, Mr. Pauly declared it is the civic responsibility of every citizen to be interested in the welfare of his community and to keep informed on developments in government and civic affairs. The subject of his talk was, "Civic Responsibility."

Mr. Pauly also discussed taxation and the use of showmanship in retail business. He was introduced by Carl E. Danner, who presided at the meeting.

Finnish People Need Your Help

Although we are 3,000 miles away from the tragedies of Europe, we are just a few moments away in time. In an unsettled world such as the present, we should not gamble upon what may or may not happen, but take steps to make impossible the occurrence of those things we consider detrimental to our own interests. One important act in this direction is to render help to the brave Finns. The nature of the lake dotted and forest covered land, their island fringed coast and their location with reference to the U. S. S. R. has enabled them to make a determined stand against seemingly overwhelming odds.

Money to care for the needs of the suffering women and children will give much encouragement to the fighting men. This help must not be delayed. Please make your contribution at once, no matter how small, to the Finnish Relief Fund.

Contributions may be made in Marion through any of the local banks, The Star office or the local chairman, George E. Planck, at his office in the Palace theater. Contributions may be made either in person or through the mail.

Kirkpatrick Superintendent Is Chosen as President.

Gail Ferris, superintendent of the Kirkpatrick school, was elected president of the Marion County Honor Society council for 1940 at an organization meeting in the county board of education office last night. Miss Evelyn Trott, member of the Agosta school faculty, was elected vice president and Miss Fern Patterson of the Green Camp school was elected secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Ferris succeeds Vayne Galladay, superintendent of the Martel school. The teachers on the council supervise the county honor society which is composed of outstanding students in the rural high schools.

Plans were discussed for selecting high school students for membership in the honor society next spring. Mr. Ferris appointed the following committees to make arrangements for the society's annual banquet some time in April: program, H. C. Secrest of Prospect, chairman, C. D. Pilkington of LaRue, Miss Mildred Hecker of Waldo and Miss Gwendolyn Wanger of Morral; banquet, Miss Gladys Uncapher of Pleasant township school, chairman, Miss Tron, Kenneth Knaggs of Meeker and Miss Winifred Kiester of Claridon.

This Is Where We Came in

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S veto of the bill restoring Ohio's social security payments for October, 1938, held up when the social security board said the state's old age assistance program was not being administered properly, seems to return this sad story of politics in social security to its starting point.

When it was announced recently that the bill was going to be put through congress with approval of the social security board, obviously the board was on a spot. Either it was wrong in 1938 when it held up the money, or it was wrong in changing its mind two years later. Its position was not tenable.

Most Ohioans, of course, believed it was right in 1938. The board's chastisement of the Davey administration for playing politics with old age assistance reflected public opinion in this state. It seemed a shame the state's aged persons should suffer for the Davey administration's political antics, but a principle was at stake.

President Roosevelt explains in his veto message that the bill, if approved, would establish a precedent that could be applied to all forms of federal aid. "It would mean that states no longer would be compelled to maintain the standards set up by the congress, but could violate these standards with impunity and still get their money."

There will be no disposition among those not blinded by partisanship or anxiety to get as much money as possible for Ohio to challenge the President's decision. As an administrative precedent, it is unassailable. If adhered to in all other similar situations it would do much to decrease the danger of mixing politics and social security.

John Speaks For Himself

JOHN L. LEWIS is in the pickle Samuel Gompers, who knew something about labor leading himself, warned against when insisting on non-partisanship in labor organizations. Mr. Lewis broke the tradition with his eyes open. He's entitled to no sympathy and probably doesn't want any.

Briefly, the pickle is this: If the Democratic party refuses to make itself over to suit Mr. Lewis in 1940 he will have to lead his followers into the wilderness. He says so, or hints at a bolt unmistakably, by telling United Mine Workers convention the Democrats haven't delivered the goods bought and paid for in 1936.

As Mr. Lewis sees it, the alternative is an accord between the Democratic party and organized labor (Mr. Lewis speaks only for C.I.O.) which will give Mr. Lewis and his associates what they want. They do not specify exactly what this is, but it no doubt would be plenty —probably more than Democrats would care to give.

Mr. Lewis does specify that Franklin D. Roosevelt is unacceptable for the nomination. Previously, he had specified that Paul V. McNutt, Cordell Hull and John N. Garner wouldn't fill the bill either. In the absence of an acceptable candidate, no commitments will be made until Mr. Lewis sees which way the wind is blowing.

It looks a great deal as though Mr. Lewis might get tipped over, which was what Mr. Gompers was afraid would happen if organized labor chose to stand on too narrow a political foundation.

War Fever Chart

WHEN Walter Millis wrote recently that the things which caused the United States to go to war the last time can't be duplicated today he gave special attention to development of public information about Europe since World war days.

In 1914 the war burst upon the American public with the impact of sudden surprise. It was less a demonstration of economic futility and bad politics than a tremendous ordeal of emotion on an international scale. Beginning with the shock of Germany's invasion of Belgium, the American public was carried to the psychological peak of the Lusitania sinking as helplessly as a child watching the unfolding of a stage tragedy.

This tremendous emotional experience was boosted along, as Millis describes so well in "The Road to War," telling what happened the last time, by propaganda. The United States was not only a helpless victim of war's excitement but a willing one. It never had a chance. It wanted to believe the worst.

Opinion that the circumstances are different now is easy to sustain. Even Finland, counterpart of Belgium in the previous war, has made no perceptible rise in America's war fever chart. Americans are sympathetic, they are indignant, they want to be as helpful as they can be, but they are showing no inclination to give emotionalism the upper hand. They are reading and listening with discrimination.

Europe's war this time is something to be studied, analyzed and guarded against, as a wise nation guards itself against an epidemic. There is nothing to be gained by catching the disease before doing something to help its victims help themselves. Here and there, to be sure, this may not be the prevailing thought, but it is the prevailing thought of the country. Most important effect of the war to date on the United States is the fact there has been no effect.

News Behind the News

Two Sides Given to Story About French and British Need for U. S. Credit.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The biggest issue of the war is sneaking up behind Mr. Roosevelt's apparently minor and routine designation of an inter-departmental committee to coordinate Allied purchases here.

The presidential secretary, Steve Early, let one whisker of the cat out of the bag when he announced Treasury Secretary Morgenthau was the President's liaison man to the committee and added "every phase of the purchases will come under the jurisdiction of the committee."

Paul Mallon

Mr. Early meant money, money, money.

The French and British have thrown a scare right up to the top here by passing official word that French exchange will be exhausted in three months, and that the British contemplate buying the astounding total of 8,000 to 10,000 more airplanes in the next 18 months if their dwindling exchange resources can be replenished—through credit, of course, although they do not mention this most important inference.

The inter-departmental committee was set up under the Roosevelt-Morgenthau Aegis to handle this nervous problem, rather than the routine coordination of production and shipping as the announcement implied.

Figures.

Mr. Morgenthau will find figures right here in Washington in two other departments of the government showing the plight of the British and French is not only better than they claim but better than has been generally supposed. It is only natural that they try to make American cabinet officials believe (and they have succeeded to some extent) that they would buy the entire United States if they were not faced with such deplorable credit circumstances.

But the most recent authentic inside data discloses that their joint holdings in the United States, plus gold, now have reached—not seven billions, which is the accepted and generally published figure—but nine billions. This is the known size of their purchasing kitty.

British holdings today of American securities total $2,500,000,000; French $600,000,000, or a total of $3,100,000,000. The British have on deposit in American banks approximately $000,000,000 in cash and the French $300,000,000. The British cash balance is only about $50,000,000 less than at the beginning of the war, although their purchases to date have run about $80,000,000 or $90,000,000. They have made some additional deposits. The point is, however, that if they bought 8,000 to 10,000 more planes, as they say, the cost would run no more than $500,000,000, which is less than their actual cash balance.

Not Handicapped Now.

Beyond these purchasing resources in this country, the British have about $2,000,000,000 in gold, the French $3,000,000,000. Not much of their gold is now in this country, probably no more than $400,000,000.

But if you will add these items you will find that Allied purchasing ability can not possibly be insufficient for their purposes within a year or two, even if they should buy double the suggested amounts.

In short, it would seem impossible for them to make out a case for credits in the face of these fresh figures.

Investments in U. S.

British letter services have circulated among American bankers and business men, as well as government officials, the plea that most of the British holdings of American securities can not be sold; that is, some are reserves of British insurance companies, and so forth. This is true, but to what minor extent no one here is able to say.

But the British government has not even considered it necessary so far to take over the American securities of any of their citizens. During the first two months of the war the British liquidated about $1,000,000 a day in American markets, then stopped. This selling has now been resumed to some extent, but whatever selling there is comes from British citizens, not from the government.

When the British really feel the need for exchange they will require their citizens to hand over their American investments for that purpose.

Gold.

Another dire, unmentioned issue has arisen in the private conferences lately held among treasury, state and commerce department officials on this subject. The United States now has $17,800,000,000 in gold stacked away in vaults—64 per cent of the entire world supply. With the world at war and buying here, the treasury stands in a fair way to accumulate shortly much more of the gold in the world. World production is about $100,000,000 worth a year, of which the British produce about 60 per cent. Incidentally, second largest producer is Russia from whom we are buying gold at a premium price while lending money to the Finns to fight against them, a situation which likewise prevails in the far east where we are buying Japanese gold after lending money to China.

The question is what happens when we get all the gold in the world, whether our arbitrary premium price will then be meaningless, whether the gold will then become useless. No answer to this question is available here, but some of the President's economists are saying privately they would rather extend credits to Britain and France for the valid economic reason of keeping gold out, than the spurious ones which are being offered for propaganda purposes.

JANUARY 26 is an important date in the history of our foreign relations, because it marks the end—by our action—of our treaty of trade and friendship with Japan. That doesn't mean that we shall stop trading with Japan; it does mean that if we decide to take any economic action against her, we can do so without breaking a treaty. And there is a movement in congress to shut off exports unless Japan restores the Open Door in China.

As this chart indicates, what Japan buys from the United States is more important to her than what she sells us.

The figures are for the first 11 months of 1939. In that period, our imports from Japan increased $27,000,000 over the same period in 1938, the higher prices of raw silk accounting for most of the gain. In the same period, our exports to Japan dropped about $7,000,000. Part of this was due to the unofficial boycott on the sale of military aviation material. At the same time, big increases were shown in the sales of such war material as iron, steel scrap and copper.

Today and Tomorrow

Congress Believed Failing To Take Long-Range View of Its Three Major Problems.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THERE are three big measures before congress and each is concerned with the unknown future. There is the budget covering a period which does not even begin until July 1 next and then extends until the middle of the summer after next summer. There is the defense bill which, as regards the navy at least, looks ahead for four years, almost to the end of the administration which succeeds this administration. And there is the extension of the power to negotiate the trade agreements, a power which is now related chiefly to the kind of social order we shall live in after the war. Congress, in other words, is not dealing with the immediate situation, but with the situation as it is going to be.

Walter Lippmann

If the war becomes violent, obviously there will be immense consequences not only in the fighting zone itself but in all our foreign relations and the economic position and upon the political opinions and the feelings of the people. Even if the war continues for another year or more to be a siege and a diplomatic maneuver, it is bound to cause an increasing dislocation throughout the world.

Believe U. S. Insulated

But congress is committed to the view that this country is insulated because congress would prefer it to be isolated. It is committed to the view that this country is so self-contained and so self-sufficient that it can not be affected vitally by what happens; but also that the country is so immature, so gullible, and has such a giddy mind that it dare not trust itself to consider what may happen, and that if it lets itself begin thinking about the issues and possible consequences of the greatest crisis of modern times, it will be bamboozled by the ghost of Lord Northcliffe.

So the administration is afraid to tell congress and the public what it knows and what it thinks, and congress is afraid to listen, even in private, lest it be assailed by troublesome doubts. "Don't tell me any more about Finland," said one legislator to a man who called on him. "I do not want to believe in something which is not consistent with what my constituents think I believe. After all, I have to preserve my intellectual integrity."

Naturally, then, congress is moving in an atmosphere of unreality, having fled from reality and locked and bolted the doors behind it.

Thus, since no one is able to foresee, nor willing seriously to consider, what will be the real situation from six months to 18 months hence, the budget is being made, at the White House and at the Capitol and in both party caucuses, with a view to placating those who wish to economize without alienating those who make claims on the treasury.

Budget Factors

The budget is not being debated with a view to preparing the country to withstand the shocks and dislocations that the war is certain to produce; not even the administration appears to have made up its mind whether, with the treasury, it is preparing against war inflation or with the White House it is still trying to inflate for recovery from depression. The result is a discussion which strongly resembles an attempt to do a jigsaw puzzle in a dark room.

The national defense is being examined on the basis of a plan which would actually be completed in 1944. But congress was startled, and rather resentful, when Admiral Stark had the candor to tell it that the adequacy of the navy depends on whether we are preparing to defend the United States in one ocean or in two oceans against one enemy or against a coalition, alone or with allies, in a world where a victorious Nazi-Communist combination has made an alliance with Japan and Italy, or in a world in which Great Britain and France had defeated the totalitarian states. The nerves of congress are not, at the moment, strong enough to endure such unpleasant considerations.

Tanks

The interesting thing about tanks is that they break down at the drop of a hat, or a fair-sized hand grenade. I don't mean the tanks we see in the newsreels, wandering around the country knocking down trees which never did anybody any harm. I mean a tank which has been sent out to mow down the enemy, if the enemy will stand still and be mowed down.

You're out in a tank in a Finnish forest and it's starting to snow. The tank is missing on five or 11 cylinders and the next gasoline station is 42 miles away. The last tree you knocked over broke your fender and windshield wiper. You'd have had two or three flat tires, too, if a tank had tires. So the tank gets fed up with it all and quits, and where are you? You're in a tank and they'll find you still there next spring when the snow melts.

This thing has happened before in military history. In the middle ages the armor-clad knights kept piling it on until it took a block and tackle to put them on their horses. When they fell off they could only lie on the ground and glare and swear at each other. An able-bodied boy with a baseball bat could have cleaned them up. Finland isn't doing so badly with the Russian tank battalions, either. (Don Rose in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

BEWARE NOW OF EPIDEMIC COLDS!
Here's Some Good Time-Tested Advice
With folks all around suffering with contagious colds, be just as careful as you can—and you may avoid a lot of sickness, trouble and worry.
Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Beware of wet feet and drafts. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.
Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.
AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A SNIFFLE, SNEEZE OR NASAL IRRITATION... put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because Va-tro-nol is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of Va-tro-nol helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.)
IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING COLD DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) depend on Vicks VapoRub to relieve miseries. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warmed cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a warming poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.
Both Va-tro-nol and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks Va-tro-nol and a jar of Vicks VapoRub today.

HIGHWAY HEAD CITES STATE'S ROAD NEEDS

Beggtler Sees Crisis Ahead for Ohio.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26—Robert S. Beggtler, state highway director, told Ohio needs $550,000,000 to modernize its roads.

He told highway engineers at a regional conference last night that much of the state's 18,000-mile system needs rebuilding, adding:

"Today we are making little if any headway. Some day Ohio is going to face a crisis."

Beggtler favors more multiple lane roads and more freeways as approaches to cities. He believes Ohio's gasoline tax is "high enough" for highway maintenance, but advocates all taxes derived from motor vehicles be used for highway purposes.

The director also favors legislation to prevent political changes in highway department personnel.

Another conference speaker, Col. D. E. Pancoast, manager of the Ohio planning survey, said the volume of coast-to-coast motor traffic is too small for toll-financing of proposed transcontinental super-highways.

Only 300 persons are on their way across country each day, he reported, and cited surveys to show the bulk of traffic in all parts of the country to be local.

FIRE

of the neighborhood, nearby business men and passersby smelled smoke in the vicinity of the store. It was reported. Although no smoke was seen until shortly before the fire was discovered, the odor of burning wood attracted attention over a broad area from Central Junior High school to Church street and from Union street to Orchard street.

Detected by Officer

One of the first to notice the odor was Patrolman Louis B. Cunningham, who was patrolling the police beat in the vicinity of the store. Unable to discover any smoke or trace of fire, he notified the police department and other officers joined residents of apartments and passersby in the search. It was not until a half dozen buildings in the neighborhood, including Central Junior High school, had been inspected that the "searching party" saw a faint trace of smoke coming from the Sears, Roebuck store.

Firemen said a heavy steel fire door connecting the furnace room with the rest of the basement undoubtedly prevented the fire from spreading to other sections of the store. The flames also were retarded by the fireproof floor between the furnace room and the rest rooms, they pointed out. Although a small hole was burned in this floor the flames spread slowly.

Only minor damage resulted to a large furnace boiler and a mechanical stoker located a few feet from the spot where the fire apparently started. Although this equipment was vitually surrounded by flames during the peak of the fire, it continued to operate uninterrupted, firemen reported.

FOUR CITIES BIDDING FOR POLITICAL RALLIES

All Sections Make Requests for Party Conventions.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and San Francisco have notified the Democratic and Republican committees that they will bid for the national conventions of the two major parties.

Others may enter the competition later. Chicago and Philadelphia groups were said to be prepared to offer substantial sums for both presidential nominating conclaves.

St. Louis has asked for time to make a convention offer to the Republican committee meeting here Feb. 16, and San Francisco will be represented before the Democratic gathering here Feb. 5.

There was some talk in Democratic ranks that the Feb. 5 meeting might choose a site, but leave a date for the convention to be selected later by a special committee, after the Republicans had decided when their convention would be held.

Talk of convention cities shares interest in the capital with the omnipresent third term discussion and further reaction to John L. Lewis' speech in Columbus, predicting an "ignominious defeat" for President Roosevelt, should he be renominated.

MERCURY

The Cincinnati harbor was frozen bank to bank and near North Bend, Ind., ice piled 10 to 12 feet above the surface.

The river was full at Ashland, Ky., and dam attendants said a gorge or gorges extended from dam 19, below Parkersburg, W. Va., to Gallipolis, O.

If current conditions prevail for the week-end, U. S. engineers said, the pack probably will extend itself eastward to Huntington, W. Va., or beyond.

The huge gorge reported at Madison, Ind., the first of the week had extended itself back to Lawrenceburg, only 25 miles from Cincinnati.

Nearer here were two other ice floes, one which formed near the mouth of the Great Miami river and extended to the Fernbank dam, a few miles below the city.

Above Cincinnati a small gorge was formed near the mouth of the little Miami river.

Some formations were extending out into the Mississippi river, and hampering freight movements in the area of Memphis, Tenn.

The Federal Barge Lines, largest operator on the Mississippi, reported that all traffic north of Memphis had been stopped and that below all steamers were bringing only light barges through in relays.

Army engineers minimized the danger from the gorges with declarations that the ice was not stopping the flow of water, that the river was not rising.

Chris Green, a barge line official here, said the great danger was in a sudden turn to unusual warm weather and heavy rains, which might result in extensive destruction when the ice formations break loose.

LEWIS IN ACTION

Predicting that if President Roosevelt was renominated for a third term in the White House he would go down to "ignominious defeat," John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, is shown as he addressed the golden jubilee convention of the C.I.O. group at Columbus, O.

WHEELER

aid some of the administration legislation," he added.

"An announcement that he is not a candidate would dissolve Republican opposition that is based on politics alone."

The miners' convention, after a routine morning session, adjourned to await Wheeler's speech this afternoon.

Lewis was being watched closely as to whether he would answer the question of backing for Wheeler.

The Montana Democrat's appearance portended more drama for convention delegates still angry over the "dastardly trick" of a prankster, who unfurled a Communist flag on the stage while Lewis was speaking.

The words of Lewis, president of the miners and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, were closely watched today for any hint that he would support Wheeler for the presidency.

The Montanan was advanced as a presidential possibility when Lewis, with many words of praise, invited him to speak before the mine workers.

Lewis Takes Stand

Since then, the C.I.O. leader has broken with the New Deal, criticized Paul V. McNutt, Democratic federal security administrator with presidential ambitions, and predicted a Roosevelt third term campaign would end in "ignominious defeat."

Yesterday's flag incident provided a perfect setting for the C.I.O. leader again to deny accusations that his organization is inhabited by Communists.

A nationwide broadcast was in progress, commemorating the founding of the U.M.W. 50 years ago. Lewis was speaking. Suddenly, from the stage loft, a huge red banner with a hammer and sickle was lowered above the speakers head.

Startled delegates rose to their feet and shouted, "tear it down." The banner was removed while miners milled about, muttering angry protests.

Lewis Riled Up

Lewis, visibly shaken, completed the broadcast, restored order and said:

"It appears that someone has tried to perpetrate a most cowardly, reprehensible and dastardly trick. No one can regret this more than a delegate of the United Mine Workers."

"There are no Communists in the United Mine Workers of America," he declared, and the delegates cheered wildly. He explained that the U.M.W. constitution barred Communists.

"The United Mine Workers of America is an American institution," Lewis said. "It has but one flag, and that is the American flag. . . . it will do as much or more to protect that flag as any cross-section of the American citizenship or any one else who may proclaim their patirotic principles."

Police were asked to search for the prankster.

Green Praises Roosevelt Efforts

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—The Roosevelt administration was highly praised last night by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who said labor had made "more progress in the last seven years than ever before."

While not mentioning President Roosevelt, the New Deal and C.I.O. Chieftain John L. Lewis by name, Green said "we do not sing a song of hate nor do we form an organization known as the Royal Order of Ingrates."

He said that "through the support of our political friends, the workers of this country have made more progress in the last seven years than ever before in the history of our country."

His "song of hate" remark apparently was directed at Lewis who had told a United Mine Workers of America convention that Roosevelt had broken faith with labor.

A molded rubber collar to be placed over the end of an electric light socket to prevent entrance of dust and metal particles to cause short circuits has been invented.

Unity's Adventure in Nazi-land Stirs Tempest at Home

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The tempest stirred in the English teapot by the Nazi-land adventures of the Honorable Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, highly born, blond young friend of Adolf Hitler ("I think he is wonderful"), provides indirectly an interesting commentary on the changing social structure of Britain.

When members of the august house of lords rose to the defense of Lord Redesdale's lovely daughter, whom the fuehrer has described as a model of Nordic beauty, they were in fact rising to the defense of the British aristocracy.

Joseph Henderson, Laborite member of the house of commons, had asked the home secretary whether Miss Unity would be placed under detention because of "recent hostile associations."

Henderson had reference, of course, to the fact that the lady arrived in England early this month from Germany, long after Britain and Nazidom had begun firing guns at each other in anger. Her return to the baronial hearth of her fathers was a rather strange affair, inasmuch as she came back wan and weak on a stretcher and reportedly suffering from a mysterious bullet wound in her neck.

It is passing strange that the house of lords should be aroused to defend the nobility from which it springs. Largely shorn of legislative power, it ordinarily pursues its drowsy course with a reluctance to be ruffled by argumentative subjects of any sort.

But the English aristocrat has been seeing hard times since the World war.

Huge, near-feudal estates comprising scores of thousands of acres and taking in entire villages, have been broken up until comparatively few remain. Taxation has brought ruin to many of the great houses, and forced those born of wealth and position to turn to the unfamiliar business of making livings.

CANADA WILL VOTE ON WAR POLICIES

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA, Jan. 26 — Political leaders set up campaign machinery today for the most hectic electioneering battle in 20 years as a result of the dominion government's call for a general vote to put its war record up to the people.

In a swift-moving drama which surprised many members, parliament was dissolved late yesterday through an address from the throne read by Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir calling for an early "direct and unquestioned mandate from the people."

CONGRESS DECIDES AGAINST TAX HIKE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—The opinion that congress has decided to avoid the unpalatable dilemma of raising taxes or increasing the national debt limit was expressed today by three influential Democratic senators in the wake of new economy victories.

The senate and house clipped $33,550,335 from President Roosevelt's budget estimates in action on three appropriation measures yesterday.

The $1,032,154,612 treasury-post office measure was approved by the house after $11,491,000 was whittled from budget estimates. The senate voted reductions of $20,178,935 in passing the $251,822,588 emergency defense measure, and the house then ordered a $1,882,400 reduction in a $58,502,600 deficiency bill.

Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, said a survey in 23 cities showed that of those who had obtained jobs as much as three months after dismissal approximately a half were earning less than the WPA security

BRITISH STEAMER BOARDED BY JAPS

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Jan. 26—The captain of the British coastal steamer Wing Sang reported today that a Japanese naval boarding party searched and detained his ship for more than 15 hours in apparent retaliation for the British seizure of 21 Germans from the Japanese liner Asama Maru.

The captain said a Japanese destroyer halted the Wing Sang Tuesday night off Matsu Island in the vicinity of Foochow by firing two blank shots.

Japanese officers, an interpreter and 21 armed men boarded the ship, inspected the register and searched the vessel without examining cargo, the captain said.

The boarding officer, in questioning the captain, asked, "have you heard of the Asama Maru incident?"

The captain said he had not, so the Japanese told him of the incident which occurred Sunday.

He said he refused the Japanese request that he sign a statement saying he had agreed to the search of the Wing Sang.

KISSING BAN FINDS CLEVELAND BACKER

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26—A Western Reserve university health expert took exception today to a California physician's declaration that "a genuine kiss generates so much heat it destroys germs."

Dr. Lee Ferguson, head of the university's health service, declared there was "no question" but that colds in acute stages were "easily" transmitted" by kissing.

After 16 University of California students were stricken with mild cases of influenza, school health officers decreed a 60-day ban on kissing. Dr. S. L. Katzoff, medical director and psychiatrist of the San Francisco Institute of Human Relations, commented "If anything, the university ought to advocate more kissing."

Dr. Ferguson said all Western Reserve students had been warned to avoid "close contact" while suffering from colds, but there is no specific ban on kissing.

WALLACE RENEWS CROP TAX EFFORT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Agricultural leaders reported today that Secretary Wallace was making a new effort to line up support among farm organizations and in congress for processing taxes to help finance federal crop control programs.

Wallace was described as "undaunted" by the poor reception given the "income certificate" processing tax plan since he first endorsed it two months ago.

Appropriations for parity payments to producers of major crops would be unnecessary under this plan. Farmers would get the equivalent of such payments from dealers or others to whom they sold their crops. Purchasers would be required to pay a set rate above the market price on the portion of the crop designed for domestic consumption.

LEVIES

two years. This means a tax of $2.20 on each $1,000 worth of property in the city. The present tax rate is $17.30 per $1,000 worth of property. Last year it was $19 per $1,000. If the levies pass it will be $19.50 per $1,000. The tax levies would be collected beginning in June when the taxpayers would be required to pay for the entire year of 1940, according to the county auditor's tentative plans.

8. What vote is required for passage?—The relief levy must have a 55 per cent favorable vote and the WPA levy 65 per cent.

9. What will happen if the levies fail?—In no event will the city permit any one to starve. If the citizens of Marion reject the levies, some way will be found to finance relief, very likely by cutting down on various departments. It might be necessary to reduce the police and fire departments, health service and other normal city services which the public has come to expect. The amount of food and fuel granted relief clients probably would be reduced.

Brother John Tries New Way To Use His Pension Check

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26—A tall man in bare feet started a riot on Main street by giving away more than 1,000 quarters, and today police sought means to curb his generosity.

The man, known only as Brother John, a picturesque figure of the Skidroad sector for more than 20 years, late yesterday started handing out 25-cent pieces to homeless men near a Main street cafe, announcing in stentorious tones:

"I'm feeding the hungry. I'm tired of having money. My sons forget material things."

Men came running with outstretched hands, and within a few minutes some 2,000 persons were pushing and struggling to get within Brother John's coin-tossing distance.

Some one called the police riot squad. Eight officers were unable to dispell the crowd, so they took Brother John to central police station. There, estimating that the man had given away more than $250, they impounded the rest of the money and instructed him not to start another such disturbance.

Brother John, rumored once to have been a prominent San Francisco man, said the money was accumulated from state pension checks and funds given to him by friends.

COURT FINDS COUPLE NEVER MARRIED

Pair Separate After Learning of Relationship.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 26 — An attractive 19-year-old brunet, told her 20-day-old marriage to her own brother never existed before the law, was back home with her foster parents today, waiting for her baby to be born.

Juvenile Judge Wilfred Bradshaw explained to Virginia Wolfe Williamson yesterday evidence showed she and LeRoy Williamson, 20, whom she wed here Jan. 6, had the same mother and probably the same father.

"Under the law you never were married," he said, "and under the law it is not necessary to annul the marriage. But it might be wise to have annulment proceedings."

Born here, the two were separated as babies. They met last April when LeRoy returned from a LaFayette orphanage to take a casket trimmer's job. Their mother is dead.

His study of the records convinced the young man he and she were not related. But he admitted Tuesday he had been wrong, and went to Urbana, Ill., to live with an aunt. He was not in court yesterday.

The girl went back to Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wolfe of Indianapolis, who reared her. She said she was expecting to become a mother in July.

U. S.-JAP TREATY

the United States approaches $400,000,000 a year, Japan has sought unsuccessfully to obtain a new treaty or some stop-gap arrangement to continue present commercial regulation.

In Tokyo the end of trade treaty relations with the United States for the first time in 86 years occasioned little public interest, although the possibility of grave developments was recognized.

Newspapers commented briefly, deploring the economic "weapon" which the United States holds over Japan, and some criticizing Japan's "weak diplomacy."

Yukichiro Suma, spokesman for the foreign office, said at a press conference that the government was depending on "the common sense" of the United States to prevent the uneasiness likely to exist with trade relations on a "day to day basis."

AMERICANS URGED TO RETURN HOME

By The Associated Press

Americans in Sweden today were advised by the United States legation in Stockholm to consider returning home "because of the prevailing international situation" in a move officials called "simply are precautionary measure" lacking "urgency or compulsion."

In the British-French-German war, Germans reported their submarine production had reached a one-a-day level and British looked for intensified attacks on merchant shipping.

Artillery fire thundered in the Vosges mountains on the western front, but activity otherwise apparently was limited to scouting by the rival air forces. The Germans reported one British plane shot down yesterday.

SHAKEDOWN TRY BRINGS PEN TERM

By The Associated Press

Its overtones were a sentence of one to five years in Ohio penitentiary and a $1,000 fine.

Eighteen minutes after a jury started deliberations it convicted Bruno of extortion in connection with an attempt to induce Dennis Van Doros of Akron to join a music box owners' association.

Jurors heard testimony that Van Doros was urged to join the association by paying an initial fee of $15 and 25 cents a month for each machine he had installed in Summit county.

Bruno's counsel said he would appeal the verdict.

PRESIDENT WON'T ORDER PAYMENT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—President Roosevelt said today he would be inconsistent with his veto of legislation ordering payment of certain old age assistance funds to Ohio if he now should direct the social security board to make the payment.

The President rejected Wednesday a bill which would have compensated the state for expenditure of its own funds to meet old age benefits during October, 1938, when federal assistance was suspended because of alleged irregularities in the Ohio administration.

In his veto message to the house Mr. Roosevelt described his opposition to the bill as due to his insistence that states must comply completely with federal laws in such matters. To make an exception in the case of Ohio, he said, would be an undesirable precedent.

Prexies To Seek Fourth N. C. O. Win; Saints Face Fostoria Foe.

By CHARLES HOSTETLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

MARION schoolboy basketballers head east tonight, both St. Mary and Harding traversing the same path in search of victories in their respective leagues.

The Saints hop to Crestline, some 30 miles away, where they will engage Tiffin Calvert during the League of Six Nations' observance of "league" night. Crestline, leaders of the loop, take on Fostoria St. Wendelin in the other half of the program.

Traveling only 10 miles farther, the Presidents will be active in a return engagement on the Shelby court. Coach Dewey N. Bohyer's club is slated to nab the fourth win, since they had little trouble warping the Whippets in the North Central Ohio conference opener here some weeks ago.

Will Crowd 30-S

Migration of players and followers to the closely located battle scenes will provide somewhat of a parade over route 30-S. Teams will embark from their schools shortly after 5 o'clock and until Midnight Marion cars will be shuttling back and forth over the same stretch of highway.

Tonight's county league bill headlines the meeting of old rivals, Prospect at Pleasant, with the defending champs desperately in need of a win to stay in the midst of the current title scrap. Prospect, tied for third place, will be shooting to repeat last week's performance, when Caledonia toppled the crownwearers from their throne. Claridon, unbeaten leaders, may have its hands full in playing host to Waldo, while Caledonia, the other occupant of third spot, faces the easy task of entertaining Martel.

Leading Gals Idle

In the feminine division the undefeated and untied Kirkpatrick entry enjoys a week of well-earned rest, as does the runner-up Morral club. Claridon and Caledonia are the only other squads still holding a slim mathematical chance at the crown and Caledonia should take Martel in stride, but Claridon faces the possibility of an upset against Waldo, defending girls' titleholders.

Teams in nearby county leagues will be jockeying for positions in the home stretch. Wharton and Harpster, with eight wins and a loss, top the Wyandot county quintets and tonight Wharton plays at Nevada, while Harpster entertains McCutchenville. Forest, unbeaten leaders in Hardin county, play host to Alger. Ostrander, Hyatts and Sunbury, holding identical records of seven wins and a defeat in the Delaware county race, have a full schedule. Sunbury visits Harlem, Hyatts entertains Radnor and Ostrander journeys to Ashley.

The Only One?

Officials at Montagu pork at Nassau in the Bahamas believe Mrs. R. K. Moore is the only woman official handicapper in the history of the turf. She will assign weights and classify entries for the 1940 winter meeting. She is crazy over horses, as is evidenced by the fact that she and her late husband were married on horseback in 1923.

MINORS TO CONTINUE

By The Associated Press

EBENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 26—Elmer M. Daily, president of the Pennsylvania State association and the Middle Atlantic league, declared today he planned to continue operation of the minor loops "as in the past" despite uncertainty over their status under Judge Kenesaw M. Landis' ruling disbanding the Detroit farm system.

Cavaretta Ready for Comeback at 22

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Jan. 26—Phil Cavarretta of the Chicago Cubs, who played in his first World Series as an 18-year-old, is ready for the comeback trail at 22 after recovering from an injury that almost struck him out of baseball.

Cavarretta broke his right ankle sliding into second base at the Polo Grounds last May 8 and was out for the rest of the season. The bone failed to heal properly and months later an operation was performed.

"The surgeons just did get to it in time," Cavaretta said today as he baked the ankle in the Florida sun. "They had to take out a wire that was holding the bone together, and the ankle was badly infected."

Eager and anxious as any rookie, Cavarretta discussed his chances of winning back a regular berth with the Cubs. He is assured of being on the payroll, for he signed his contract months ago.

"It looks like a six-way scramble for the outfield positions," he said. "I played quite a lot at first base before, but Rip Russell has been doing a fine job there, and if I was the manager I wouldn't move him off the spot.

"The outfield looks just as tough. Augie Galan had a good year at left and Hank Leiber was a house fire in center when his charley-horse wasn't bothering him. Bill Nicholson, bought from Chattanooga for right field two months before the season ended, was a hard man to get out toward the last."

"I don't care where I play, though," he mused, "just so I get to play every day. I sure do hate to warm that bench, and I wouldn't like to get traded off. I grew up in Chicago."

KIRKPATRICK TOPS UPPER SANDUSKIANS

Beers collected 21 points for the winners and Tilton led the visitors with 10. In a girls' preliminary Jump's Flat Shop of Marion handed Caledonia a 34-9 lacing. Varied Mat Program Set for Mond

"As You Like It," one of the works of Bard Will Shakespeare, has no connection with Monday's wrestling show except that the title is a good estimate of what spectators may anticipate.

If it's rough, rugged ringwork fans are seeking, the Martino Angelo-Al Williams duel should be right down their alley. But for those who prefer straight, fast grappling the co-featured tilt, matching Andy Tremaine and Billy Rayburn, should pack plenty of wallop.

Angelo, the squat little Italian who hails from Buffalo, still is gloating about his victory over The Mask. He tossed the hooded one from the ring for a kayo blow and since has been playing the role of a swashbuckling conqueror.

The rough son of Italy will face his equal in Chicago's ex-sailor, Al Williams. It's Al's first trip to Marion since the holidays and word has it that he's been undergoing a special program of workouts before resuming the road. The tow-headed Chicagoan is as rought as any battler ever to appear here and he's a cinch to hold his own against Angelo.

Tremaine, who calls Phoenix, Ariz., his home town, and Rayburn, the southern gentleman from Atlanta, Ga., need little introduction to local mat-goers. Andy visited here last week long enough to put the stopper on Tex Hager, bronc-busting Oregonian, to win the plaudits of a critical audience.

Rayburn is a mere youngster as ring ages go, just pass twenty-seventh birthday ly. However, his work in th indicates that he is a from the point of experien in previous appearances he always managed to take himself.

Leg Wrestler

Billy is one of the tanglers in the art of leg ling and many of his grips are variations of th sors and figure fours. Bot are fast-steppers once th inside the squared circle a toss-up to choose a win.

Both main bouts will minute affairs, two falls necessary to win. A prel of 20 minutes will open th day card at 8:30.

Coach Attacks Zone Defense

Van Alstyne of Michigan State Says System Must Go for Good of Game.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—Mr. Ben Van Alstyne doesn't care how it's done—either by an act of congress, a proclamation or by a write-in referendum.

"But the zone defense in basketball must go," he stoutly maintains.

And Van Alstyne's word necessarily carries weight. The mild mannered coach of the Michigan State Spartans is not only an all-time Colgate great and a producer of fine midwestern teams but one who has the added distinction of having been a high school and a professional star—at one and the same time.

He explains that simply: "They weren't so strict about amateurism in those days."

Van Alstyne, who brought his team here to meet Long Island university in the feature of tonight's Madison Square Garden doubleheader, was guest of honor at a luncheon given by the metropolitan basketball writers association when he unloosed his blast at the zone.

"It's almost impossible to penetrate a tight zone defense and so there's nothing to do but stand way out front and fire away. If a team is hot, it'll win. If it's off, it's pitiful . . ."

Van believes the small man will grow in stature if the zone is abolished, because then the emphasis will be on better ball handling, more speed and more carefully planned offense.

Nowadays, he commented, "the teams start to shoot as soon as they leave the dressing room door."

5 Who Fought in Marion Scrap in Cleveland Show

Five youthful glove throwers who have taken part in recent Golden Gloves tournaments here were among the contestants in last night's inaugural round of battles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer's 12th annual Golden Gloves meet.

Beauford Glover, Mansfield's lightweight winner last year, knocked out Lorenzo Martin of Cleveland in the first round. Paul Carbetta of Mansfield, flyweight winner here, decisioned Leo Garrett of Cleveland. Another Mansfielder, Al Sauer, delivered the kayo blow in the second round of his scrap with Loren Love of Cleveland.

Other punchers who are known locally didn't fare so well. The McKinley brothers of Ashland, Ernie, who won the featherweight crown here, was defeated by Joe Shulkoff of Cleveland, while Melvin, who was crowned king of the local bantamweights, was outpointed by Mike Cefaratti of Cleveland.

Still others, known locally, although they won no titles here, include Harley Freer of Ashland, knocked out in the first round by Allen Aubrey of Cleveland; Frank Parker of Ashland defeated by Frank Loucks of Cleveland; Ray Howman of Ashland defeated by Jimmy Kints of Cleveland.

FARR "FED UP"

Tommy Farr, now wearing the blue uniform of the Royal Air Force, says he is fed up with the boxing game in England. Since returning from America he has had only one fight. Efforts to get a bout with Len Harvey, English champ, have proved to be futile.

Life After 40

No hope of ever returning to the game he glorified for two decades stirs in the mind of George Herman Ruth, seen above taking life easy in his Riverside drive apartment in New York. Babe now weighs 243 pounds and finds his sport in hunting and golfing. He plans a spring trip south to serve on a baseball school faculty.

BUCYRUS COLLECTS OLD WATER BILLS

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Jan. 28—The Bucyrus water works department is $1,000 richer today than two weeks ago, when Mayor William F. Whiteamire and Service Director Fred Judd clamped down on delinquent water accounts.

Both officials served notice shortly after taking office Jan. 1 that they intended to force payment of delinquent accounts, which now total $17,000 of which $15,000 is "absolutely collectable," according to the officials.

Since then a number of delinquent accounts have been paid in full and arrangements have been made by others delinquent for years to make regular payments.
